Unfinished Business

Unfinished Business was a joint project of the Women's Social and Political Coalition, Council of Action for Equal Pay and Women's Education and Employment Victoria and was set up in 1986 with money from the Women's Trust to provide outreach services to the women of country Victoria. Information and educative workshops were organised in various country locations, including Rosebud, Geelong and Mildura, around issues such as equal pay as well as skill sharing workshops on how to write submissions, lobby for funding and contact the media so that women could learn how to mount successful campaigns on their own behalf and at the same time consolidate women's networks round Victoria.

Unfinished Business was abandoned as a project once the money ran out.
